COMMERCE MAKES A GOOD EXHIBIT.

WALL STREET, SUNDAY, Oct. 12, 1873. A review of the events of the last week can add but little to the facts and conclusions with which the public has been made familiar. Viewed as a whole, however, they afford a clearer insight and give a more hopeful aspect to the situation than we have had since the beginning of the crisis. On all sides there are signs of recovery. Those who went down in the crash are beginning to resuscitate. The banks which banded together for mutual protection are already discussing the propriety of dissolving their peculiar clearing house copartnership and reassuming their individual interest, although the question is still an open one whether the hour is just now rine for the change. The mercantile community are receiving larger accommodations in the way of discounts and enjoying greater iscilities in their collections.

TRADE IS IMPROVING. The arrival of gold from England, while we cannot directly trace its ultimate influence there or here, has quieted to a considerable extent the apprehensions of the agricultural community, and there is less of a disaster predicted as a consequence of blocking the crops. True, the South, with her great hoard of cotton, is still suffering from the inability to move the millions of bales now awaiting a market, and representative bankers and merchants are now in New York from Wilmington, Charleston, Columbia, Augusta, Savannah, Mobile and New Orleans who frankly declare that if they are unable to obtain the desired relief at this point the commercial community of their section will be obliged to invoke the direct aid of English gold; but it is to be hoped that even this contingency will pass away. The dry goods trade are in a better condition. Manufacturers all around us-in New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and elsewhere-report

A FREER FLOW OF CURRENCY. The stock market, too, has become more quiet, As effervescence subsided it left a sediment of Intrinsic values, tangible and non-deceptive, something like a real basis for renewed confidence; and this confidence manifested itself during the closing days of last week, not in the volume of business, not in the work of the g-eat operators, but rather in a quiet, reasonably fluctuating speculation wherein business was done on a safe basis, and the changes of price from 1 to 3 or 5 per cent offered probable profits to both the "bull" and the "bear." If this condition of affairs can be maintained, if the investor can realize that in sending forward his capital he will not be tripped by some sudden "corner" or unnatural spasm, money will undoubtedly flow into Wall street more abundantly than it has done for many years. Already business is being again done on "margins," and with proper securities brokers are enabled to obtain more or less of favors from their banks, and some among the former are free to confess they have handled

MORE OF GREENBACKS during the last ten days than in any similar period in the year. Meanwhile the premium on currency that the enforced contraction resulting from the withholding and hoarding of currency has been checked, and that we are on the eve of a healthier movement. It is, of course, a serious evil that the government has been forced to draw for its current expenses on the $44,000,000 reserve, even to the amount of three or four millions of dollars; but, after all, the Treasury has only done with its greenbacks what has been done by nearly every bank in the country with certified checks and loan certificates. It has simply bridged

A TEMPORARY DIFFICULTY by pulling out that which must be speedily redeemed. The seeming inflation by the government has not therefore been dangerous, inasmuch as it has been so infinitesimally small in comparison with, and so thoroughly out of proportion to, the vast contraction from which the country has suffered. And it is by no means among the improbabilities that the very experience which has been thus compelled will direct the attention of the next Congress to the importance of some measure whereby greater elasticity shall be secured for our circulation. A currency that is bedged around by legal restraint that hardens at a season of the year when it should most yield and be most useful to the masses, that plays the tyrant at one time and the drudge at another, is not adapted to the changes of American commerce and population. The growth of railroads, the expansion of industries, the development of States and communities within a period of even five years, present new phases to the political economist, and new combinations in the financial kaleidoscope of the country to which no fixed rule of a preceding time can be successfully applied. FRESH CONDUCTORS are thrust upon trade, new obligations exist, and additional demands are made which require enlarged executive administration and that which should spring alone from the adjustability of the law to the fact. How this result is to be effected remains to be determined, but the plan repeatedly urged upon Congress in these columns and elsewhere-to wit, the mobilization of United States bonds-is that which seems to possess the least objectionable features, inasmuch as it would enable banks and individuals alike to effect what practically would be temporary loans from the government on the basis of its own securities, without adding a dollar to the indebtedness, and, in fact, at a saving of interest upon every bond thus pledged. Men are talking about specie resumntion as if this were to be the cure-all for financial evils; but the grander work to be done is that which concerns the great volume of currency with which, even after the return of hard payments, the country will still be compelled to deal. It is one thing to fix values on a certain basis; another thing to secure at given times in the year immunity from stringency. And this can the done only by the co-operation of the government itself, in a common purpose having for its underlying principle "the greatest good to the greatest number."

atterning the past week showed the two extremes of the per cent per diem and 7 per interest in currency and coin. Discounts ranged from 12 to 24 per cent per annum, with but little doing. Foreign exchange declined to an unusually low point, and while gold-continues to come this way for the purchase of pravisions for Europe this department of the market will doubtless continue to show weak.

terday touched the extraordinary figure of 108% with an outlook favoring even lower prices. Th rates paid for carrying yesterday were 7, 6, 3-64, 7 gold, 1-16 and 6 per cent. The final rate was 7 pe cent. The fluctuations in the gold market for the week were as follows:-Monday, Oct. 6. 110 Holy 109% Tuesday, Oct. 7. 110% 110% 109% Wednesday, Oct. 8. 110% 110% 110% Wednesday, Oct. 8. 110% 110% 109% Thursday, Oct. 9. 109% 109% 109 Priday, Oct. 10. 109 109 108% Saturday, Oct. 11. 108% 108% 108%

THE POREIGN COMMERCE for the week was encouraging, inasmuch as it show the following results:-General merchandise in ports, including dry goods, $7,219,107; produce exports, $8,378,130 (the highest on record), and specie exports, $527,851. The general merchandise imports since January 1 are $323, 191,880, against $349,929,297 last year and $299,745,917 in 1871. The exports of produce since January 1 this year are $223,546,358, against $171,363,333 last year and $178,248,249 in 1871. The total exports of specie since January 1 are $42,050,862, against $59,233,037 last year and $61,202,238 in 1871.

THE GOVERNMENT BOND MARKET was weaker at the close of the week than at the beginning, being in sympathy with the decline in gold. We quote as the prices of yesterday:-United States sixes, 1881, registered, 113 a 115; do., do., coupon, 113½ a 114½; do., do., five-twenties, coupon, 1882, 106½ a 107½ do., 1865, new, 110%; do., do., do., 1867, 110% a 111%; do., do., do., 1868, 110% a 110%; do., tenforties, registered, 103%; do., do., coupon, 104 a 106; do., do., fives, 1881, coupon, 110%; Pacific Railroad sixes, 110% a 110%.

RAILROAD BONDS.

Without reproducing the list of prices for these bonds yesterday it may be observed in general terms that, while the market is not active, it evinces no falling off in the confidence with which these securities are regarded by all who are seeking permanent investment. A good railroad bond is unquestionably among the best of property that can be held, and as soon as money becomes easy once more, which we confidently predict during the next 30 days, we look for a market in this department full of life and profit.

COMMERCIAL REPORT.

Cotton Lower-Flour Dull and Easier-Wheat Lower-Corn and Oats Dull and Lower-Groceries Dull and Unchanged-Pork Nominal-Lard Easter-Petroleum ominal-Spirits Turpentine Steady-Rosin Easy-Whiskey Irregular. SATURDAY, Oct. 11, 1873.

There was but a moderate degree of activity in business circles during the whole of the week last past, and the merchandise markets were very generally dull and irregular, owing to the fluctuations in the gold premium, which were more vio-lent than at any time for some weeks. The premium touched a lower point almost every successive day, and values of merchandise were not a little affected by it, and unless there shall be a reaction, it would be only reasonable to expect a further shrinkage of values to a basis corresponding to the lower rate of gold. The export movement was checked by the lower ruling of gold and the greater decline in wheat, and shippers have held back in some instances in anticipation of still lower prices for wheat. The dealings in breadstuffs were only fair, a large proportion of the receipts having been placed "in store." The week's business in all the leading articles of merchandise was small. Hardware, dry goods, wool, &c., were dull, and in some cases lower. On 'Change the chief features were the variations in the price of whiskey, culminating in a radical decline, the enhancement in the prices of eats and towards the close of the week the general irregularity of the markets, and the uncertainty with regard to the values of merchandise, which were constantly changing. On Saturday flour was dull. Wheat was only in limited request, and lower. Corn and oats were dult and lower.

Pork remained entirely nominal. Lard was quiet and a shade easier. Groceries were dull and unchanged. Cotton was only in moderate request, and lower. Petroleum was dull and nominal. Spirits of turpentine was steady. Rosin a shade earler. Whiskey irregular, but firm. Corross—On the spot, again declined Sc. per lib. and closed weak. Future deliveries were dull and depressed, POLICE JUSTICES.

Trouble in the Happy Family-A Wheel Within a Wheel-"The Combination" and the Justices-The Schemes of the Politicians-The Wishes of an Influential Class.

While it cannot be doubted that the combination in the Board of Aldermen, designed to continue the present Police Justices in the position to which they were elected by the people, is the result of a sincere desire on the part of our City Fathers to further the public good and to pay that due regard to individual rights, so characteristic of the representatives of a free people, yet it has been nore than insinuated of late, that other and less landable motives have entered into it; that there exists a wheel within a wheel, which whirls not with the entire harmony that appears on the surface and in view of an admiring public. The truth

THE COMBINATION AND THE POLICE JUSTICES are a unit upon the question of continuing the latter in office, in other respects there has grown up among this so, apparently, happy family some very bitter feelings, the result of collateral issues of great importance to that industrious class, to whom we owe so much, veleped politicians. Who is to be Senator from this district and who is to be Assemblyman from that, are questions which are beginning to agitate the public mind and, in this connection, how is the great influence of the Police Justices to be exercised? Again, a very influential and numerous class of our fellow citizens content to be "let alone" under ordinary circumstances are, as is the custom, to be conciliated at this time. This is made up of the keepers of dance houses and gambling saloons, and their views upon the manner in which the Police Justices perform their duties, naturally of great interest to them, is just now being anxiously looked their duties, naturally of great interest to them, is just now being anxiously looked for. "Look you," say they, "we desire to be let alone and now is our seed time for that very desirable crop." And so there have been several meetings of the Board of Police Justices of late, some with and some without the suggestion of certain aldermen, and weighty matters have been taken into consideration. Among these has been the question of nomination for senator in the Fifth district. Mr. Justice Cox resides and exercises his judicial functions within this district and his personal and official influence is recognized as great within it. Now, unfortunately, the fealty of this gentleman to party and obedience to THE PARTY MAGNATES have been seriously questioned of late. A life long democrat and long time supporter of Tammany, he seems to have taken advantage of the grand break-up which followed of the exposure of the Tammany frauds to assume an independent position. And worse than that, it is even insinuated that he has been dallying with the enemy and if not aiready admitted within the charmed circle of the Custom House clique, he is regarded with much kindness and favor by it. That he cannot be considered reliable in support of the State candidate of the democracy for the Senatorship from his district is certain, and so "something must be done," says Tammany, "to neutralize his influence." Again, with Justice Cox's wavering allegiance to Tammany seems to have grown up within him a conviction that the dance houses, whitaer the young and the pure are nivelyied and started upon a career whose end is worse than death; the

and the pure are inveigled and started upon a career whose end is worse than death; the

so fruitful a source of detalcation and miseries without end; "disorderly houses," to whom the pen blushes to give another name, are not exactly the institutions calculated to improve humanity, or of that character which should be encouraged by magistrates charged with preserving the peace and good order of the city. And so complaints have been readily entertained against them at the Jefferson Market Police Court when the Justice presides, Many of them have been closed by due process of law and others by timely nonces of what might be. It is true that in the Courts below, where other ideas and counsels would seem to prevail, those arrested and held to answer have for the most part managed to escape without detriment, and yet sufficient has been done to avoid the ire of this large and influential voting class, and, naturally, at such an important epoch, their complaints must be regarded. So great is the dissatisfaction arising out of Justice Coxys political position and course in the performance of his official duties as thus described that certain members of "the combination" have been almost shaken in their belief of the unconstitutionality of the Police bill and the sacred character of those elected by the people, and, were he alone to be affected, doubtiess, the Mayor would find a working majority in the Board at an early day and his nominees would be confirmed.

However, he could not be singled out from the Mayor would find a working majority in the Board at an early day and his nominees would be confirmed.

However, he could not be singled out from the mass, and, at the same time, so great was the pressure, something must be done. After much deliberation and anxious questionings—after interviews in daylight, at twilight and at midnight, it was determined to act under a law passed by THE TWEED DYNASTY, giving the Board of Police Justices the power to arrange the duties of its members, and transfer Justice Cox to the solemn precincts of Harlem, a neighborhood proverbially well ordered, where the sitting Magistrate has the disposition of two or three prisoners per day, and where most of his time is passed in the occupation, so agreeable to the Harlem foreinthers, of smoking tobacco. Thus the influence of the recreant Justice would be to a great extent neutralized in his district, and the large and influential class who control the dance houses and gambling saloons would be appeased, open their establishments and vote streight. The Board of Police Justices sat on a recent Saturday, Gathered in the saloons in the vicinity of the meeting were the politicians and gamblers, anxiously awaiting the action of the Board, to be had that day, and ready to "give Cox a laugh when he came out choptailen, as he must, you know."

The ordinary business of the Board had been transacted, and the question of the transfer of certain Justices was about to be brought up when Alderman Kehr sent in his card. The Alderman was admitted at once, and, of course,

"What are you going to do?" says the Alderman.

"We think of transferring Justice Cox to Harment.

Brecher.—On Saturday morning, October 11, after a lisgering illness, Mrs. Catharina, wife of Nelson Beecher, in the 67th year of her age.

Gathered in the saloons in the vicinity of the meeting with the politicians and gamblers, anxiously awaiting the action of the Board, to be had that day, and ready to "give Cox a laugh when he came out chopfallen, as he must, you know."

The ordinary business of the Board had been transacted, and the question of the transfer of certain Justices was about to be brought up when Alderman Kehr sent in his card. The Aiderman was admitted at once, and, of course, "What are you going to do?" says the Alderman.

"We think of transferring Justice Cox to Harlein," was the response.

"Well, gentlemen, Justice Cox is my friend." have not made this matter of the Police Justices as party question, as you know. If you do this I may party question, as you know. If you do this I may provided the restance of the formulation of the family are respectfully invited to attend the family are respec feel compelled to." The matter was indefinitely postponed without debate.

And yet the large and influential class was not relieved. The pressure increased rather than diminished. Cox was unquestionably supporting Mr. Charles Blackie, the republican candidate for Senator from the Fifth district, and the "influential class" was shaking its nead ominously. The Police Justices were very busy and the calls made on the civil magistrates to "sit for them" were numerous. The Board had adjourned until Tuesday last. But evidently matters had not been arranged, as no quorum was present, and so another adjournment followed, and until Saturday. At the meeting on that day a strong effort was made to induce Justice Cox to assent to the transfer until after election, in deference to the wishes of a number of the democratic Aldermen. But that official persistently refused, evidently regarding himself as the uppermost dog in the fight. The outside pressure on the Board was very strong, and the Justices were urged to take the required action in who, it was argued, would not dare to stuitify himself after his past action and vote with the Mayor. The members of the Board, however, did not care thus to risk their positions, and an adjournment was had, with the vexed question still unsettled.

But one example of a transfer of a Justice, as contemplated in the present case, is on record: that of Justice Ledwith who was transserred from Jefferson Market to Essex Market some years since, through political considerations. There are grave doubts as to the power of the Board to make the change proposed, and it is understood that Justice Cox will test the question if the attempt is made to remove him from the district in which he belongs and the constituency who elected him.

THE LIGHTHOUSE QUESTION.

Congress and the State of New York, Not the Lighthouse Board, to Blame. BROOKLYN, Oct. 6, 1873.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD :-In this morning's paper I read an editorial censuring the Lighthouse Board for the want of light stations on Hart Island, N. Y., and Winter Quarter stations on Hart Island, N. Y., and Winter Quarter Shoal, Va. To reply to this charge I have no authority whatever, and I do so only because I know to whom the blame (if any) should be laid, and because, to cant a little, I hate to see "the boot on the wrong loot." The facts are that Congress, though asked, has not yet made an appropriation for placing a lightship on Winter Quarter Shoal, and the "law's delay" is the cause of the darkness on Hart Island, for the State of New York is slow to cede jurisdiction over the site of the projected lighthouse. One week from the time Congress sanctions the outlay a first class lightship out to the projected lighthouse. One week from the time Congress sanctions the outlay a first class lightship could be placed on the station; and it the Assembly would only hasten the necessary cession of the site.

To drive both gloom and gium away.

The efficiency of the Lighthouse Establishment of the United States is acknowledged by all nations, as witness Professor Tyndal and Sir Frederick Arrow's reports on their return from inspecting the system here, and the diploma and honorable mention awarded at the Vienna Exhibition, and a long article from the pen of one of your own staff, after a searching examination, which appeared in your columns some months ago, was a glowing tribute to its worth. The composition of the Lighthouse Board is in itself a sufficient guarantee of its ability, integrity and efficiency, embracing civilians of the hignest scientific attainments, and distinguished officers of the army and navy—a combination which is not and cannot be surpassed. This will be admitted by all who properly understand the nature of the Lighthouse service. I have read many articles on this subject in newspapers, works on natural philosophy and elsewhere, and I have found disparaging remarks in not more than three instances, and one of these (published in a Newark paper) was that of a discusred keeper of Passaic lighthouse, whose offences had made his removal a benefit to the service.

YORKVILLE POLICE COURT.

Pickpockets Caught in the Act. On Saturday night Detective Fallon, of the Twenty-first precinct, happened to be standing on the corner of Thirty-fourth street and Third avethe corner of Thirty-fourth street and Third avenue, when two young men, whom he knew to be professional theves, jumped off a Third avenue car in a very suspicious manner, and immediately got on a Thirty-fourth street and First avenue car. He called to his aid an officer of the Sanitary squad, and one of them jumped on each platform of the car taken by the thieves, both of whom they arrested and took to the station house. A watch dropped by one of the theves was found in the car, and now awaits an owner at the station house. The prisoners gave their names as Edward Callaghan and James Rollins. They were arraigned in court yesterday, but were remanded until an owner for the watch has been found.
